

Business fundraiser helps school library

Georgia Avenue Community School students will have more to read thanks to Coles Books and Chapters.

Coles, Chapters and the Indigo Love of Reading Foundation are launching a two-week fundraising drive through the foundation's Adopt-A-School program.

The stores are collecting cash donations beginning Sunday (Oct. 11) to Oct. 24 to supply the school with new books.

"We want to add at least one more book per child to the library," said Carol McDonough, Adopt-A-School coordinator at Coles in Country Club

Centre.

The fundraiser also includes a draw for a gift basket donated by Country Club merchants and Casual for a Cause Days, where employees dress casual and make a contribution to the Georgia Avenue library fund.

Donations can be made at Coles in Country Club Centre or Chapters in Woodgrove Centre.

The Indigo Love of Reading Foundation was established in 2004 to address Canada's literacy crisis and help give Canadian schools in need access to new books and educational resources.
